20th Street Café

1123 20th Street
Denver, CO 80202
303-295-9041

Description: It's working-class food for everyone at 20th Street, where they've been dishing up burgers, eggs, hash and fantastic chicken-fried steak since 1946. Get it hot, get it cheap, and get it fast: This place caters to anyone with a need for good, old-fashioned diner-style cooking and a hole in the belly that no sushi, souffle or consomme will fill. Come early, though, because while they open the doors at 6 a.m., they shut them after lunch.

Description: Ravenous crowds from all over town flock to La Fiesta for their midday meals. They're drawn by the convivial vibe of the huge dining room (this was once a Safeway), the friendly family that runs the joint (which is open for weekday lunches only) and the huge portions of delectably cheesy, greasy, addictive Colorado-style Mexican food, including free chips and salsa, great chiles rellenos and a hot -- very hot -- green chile packed with pork, tomatoes and peppers.

Description: Its menu boasts that Mexico City has been family-owned for forty years -- and every year shows in the depth of flavor this modest kitchen gives its green chile (offered hot or mild), its fried tacos, its steak and breakfast burritos, even that squeeze bottle of salsa. Although this stretch of Larimer has become almost unrecognizable over the past decade, with costly loft projects going up on all sides, Mexico City remains a down-home cantina full of guaranteed good food and good times.

Mori Sushi Bar and Tokyo Cuisine

2019 Market Street
Denver, CO 80205
303-298-1864

Description: Mori is housed in an old VFW post that's done double duty as a Japanese restaurant since 1948. And for a place that's been serving sushi since the start of Denver's love affair with Asian cuisine, the crew behind the ten-seat bar has a surprisingly modernist take on sushi. The fish is always fresh, and the daily specials always interesting. But Mori is about more than sushi: There's a sake bar, as well as a comprehensive menu of all the Japanese standards.

My Brother's Bar

2376 15th Street
Denver, CO 80202
303-455-9991

Description: Yes, My Brother's Bar has a fascinating history: oldest still-operating bar in Denver, Neal Cassidy hang-out, yadda yadda, etc. Yes, in its current incarnation it's a beloved and anachronistic neighborhood institution that plays classical music, caters to a demographically mixed crowd of crusty old-timers, serious drinkers, families, artists and transplants, and from its stubby galley kitchen offers a strange diner-slash-taproom-cum-lunchwagon menu. But when a burger is this good - and the kitchen cooks 'em up until 1 a.m. - you just don't need anything more.

Sushi Sasa

2401 15th Street, #80
Denver, CO 80202
303-433-7272

Description: "Kokoro bebop" -- that's what chef Wayne Conwell's doing at the very hip, ultra-modern Sushi Sasa. "Kokoro" from the heart of traditional Japanese culture, "bebop" from his tendency to riff on and reinterpret Japanese soul food. More than that, he's adding to the canon of Japanese cuisine, bringing in the influences of Italian and French food, as well as an intimate understanding of American tastes. The menu is fusion without being fusion, new but classic -- and all of the sushi is superb. Bring the gold card and don't forget to make reservations.

Two-Fisted Mario's

1626 Market Street
Denver, CO 80202
303-623-3523

Description: Two-Fisted Mario's rocks and rolls from mid-day until midnight and beyond. One reason for the crowds: Two-Fisted Mario's (and Mario's Double Daughter's Salotto, right next door) are hip, designed in a cool, organically divey way. But decor isn't everything; food is. And Mario's offers a near-perfect imitation of the East Coast, New York-knockoff, thin-crust pizza. Even better, it sells a slice for under two bucks and serves until three in the morning. Remember to buy more than you can eat; the Two-Fisted cheese pie makes a great cold breakfast.

Yazoo Barbeque Company

2150 Broadway
Denver, CO 80205
303-296-3334

Description: Yazoo owner Don Hines brings a little of the Deep South to the heart of downtown Denver. All of his barbecue meats are done dry, with sauce offered on the side. The pulled pork is amazingly redolent of powerful pecan and hickory smoke, and Hines uses only a dry rub to add flavor during the long, low and slow cooking process. There's a trick to getting good grub at Yazoo, though, and that's to come early: When the kitchen is empty, Yazoo closes for the night.

Description: Zaidy's has returned downtown, where it started. The menu is the same as at the Cherry Creek Zaidy's, and the service is of a similarly friendly, patient and slightly flustered style. But here you can eat your Nova lox and capers, your salami, egg and onion pancake in a subterranean space with comfortable. This is just the place to settle in behind a big plate of potato latkes, a pot of coffee and a knish and get down to the very serious business of having breakfast.
